Submission via Grants.gov

All applications to this program must be submitted via Grants.gov. We strongly recommend that you complete or verify your registration at least two weeks before the application deadline, as it takes time for your registration to be processed.

I. Program Description

Collaborative Research Grants support interpretive research undertaken by a team of two or more scholars, for full-time or part-time activities for periods of a minimum of one year up to a maximum of three years. Support is available for various combinations of scholars, consultants, and research assistants; project-related travel; field work; applications of information technology; and technical support and services. All grantees are expected to communicate the results of their work to the appropriate scholarly and public audiences.

Eligible projects include

- research that significantly adds to knowledge and understanding in the humanities;
- conferences on topics of major importance in the humanities that will benefit scholarly research;
- archaeological projects that include the interpretation and communication of results (projects may encompass excavation, materials analysis, laboratory work, field reports, and preparation of interpretive monographs); and
- research that uses the knowledge and perspectives of the humanities and historical or philosophical methods to enhance understanding of science, technology, medicine, and the social sciences.

These grants support full-time or part-time activities for periods of one to three years.

Sample narratives from successful grant applications are available on the program resource page. You may request additional samples by sending an e-mail message to collaborative@neh.gov.

Providing access to grant products

As a taxpayer-supported federal agency, NEH endeavors to make the products of its grants available to the broadest possible audience. Our goal is for scholars, educators, students, and the American public to have ready and easy access to the wide range of NEH grant products. For the Collaborative Research program, such products may include monographs, excavation reports, multi-authored volumes, websites, and the like. For projects that lead to the development of websites, all other considerations being equal, NEH gives preference to those that provide free access to the public. Detailed guidance on dissemination matters can be found in the Dissemination section below.

Previously funded projects

Applicants whose projects have received NEH support may apply for a grant for a new or subsequent stage of their projects. Proposals for these projects do not receive special consideration and are judged by the same criteria as others in the grant competition.

Collaborative Research Grants may not be used for

- projects undertaken by individuals (without collaboration);
- specific policy studies or educational or technical impact assessments;
- projects that seek to promote a particular political, religious, or ideological point of view;
- projects that advocate a particular program of social action;
- editions or translations (see the note below);
- support for the preparation or publication of textbooks intended primarily for classroom use;
- development of tools, including digital tools, or any materials analysis whose primary goal is refinement of a method, unless the development contributes to the larger interpretive goals of the project;
- inventories of collections;
- empirical social science research;
- projects in cognitive psychology;
- creation and enhancement of databases unless part of an interpretive humanities project;
- collection of oral history interviews, unless part of interpretive humanities research;
- research in educational methods, tests, or measurements, or any projects primarily intended for students in formal learning environments;
- recurrent meetings of professional organizations, societies, and scholarly organizations;
- planning or putting on exhibitions;
- works in the creative and performing arts (e.g., painting, writing fiction or poetry, dance performance); or

- support for publication costs or publication subvention.

Note: Applicants for individual projects should apply to the Fellowships or Summer Stipends programs. Applicants who propose to develop digital tools should consult with the NEH Office of Digital Humanities at odh@neh.gov. Proposals for editions and translations should be submitted to Scholarly Editions and Translations. Proposals for preparing bibliographies, descriptive catalogs, dictionaries, encyclopedias, databases, or other research tools or reference works should be submitted to the Humanities Collections and Reference Resources program in the NEH Division of Preservation and Access. Applicants planning exhibitions should consult with the NEH Division of Public Programs at 202-606-8269 and publicpgms@neh.gov.

NEH encourages submission of Collaborative Research applications from faculty at Historically Black Colleges and Universities, Institutions with High Hispanic Enrollment, and Tribal Colleges and Universities.

Applicants proposing research in the social or behavioral sciences, linguistics, or economics are encouraged to consider the funding programs of the National Science Foundation's Directorate for Social, Behavioral, and Economic Sciences at <http://nsf.gov/dir/index.jsp?org=sbe>.

Applicants proposing medical, clinical, or behavioral research are encouraged to consider the funding programs of the National Institutes of Health at <http://grants.nih.gov/grants/oer.htm>.

The Collaborative Research program welcomes projects that respond to NEH's Bridging Cultures initiative. Such projects could focus on cultures internationally or within the United States. International projects might seek to enlarge Americans' understanding of other places and times, as well as other perspectives and intellectual traditions. American projects might explore the great variety of cultural influences on, and myriad subcultures within, American society. These projects might also investigate how Americans have approached and attempted to surmount seemingly unbridgeable cultural divides, or examine the ideals of civility and civic discourse that have informed this quest.

Bridging Cultures: Humanities Scholarship in Mexico and the United States

The National Endowment for the Humanities and the Humanities Department of the National Autonomous University of Mexico (Coordinación de Humanidades de la Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México [UNAM]) are cooperating to foster the exchange of information and advance research in the humanities. NEH is inviting applications for support of collaborative research projects involving scholars from the United States and UNAM. Project participants may also include other scholars from Mexico and other countries. Applications are to be submitted to the Collaborative Research program. Projects may address topics in any field of the humanities and may be multidisciplinary.

Prospective applicants are urged to discuss their ideas with the Collaborative Research program staff before proceeding to develop applications. Inquiries may be addressed to collaborative@neh.gov. The application deadline is December 8, 2011. Applicants should follow the specific instructions for proposals in these guidelines and, in particular, those in section IV – Application and Submission Information.

II. Award Information

Awards are made for a minimum of one year up to a maximum of three years and normally range from $25,000 to $100,000 per year. Successful applicants will be awarded a grant in outright funds, matching funds, or a combination of the two, depending on the applicant's preference and the availability of funds. The use of federal matching funds is encouraged. Federal matching funds are released on a one-to-one basis when a grantee secures gift funds from eligible third parties.

(Learn more about different types of grant funding.)

Cost sharing

Cost sharing consists of the cash contributions made to a project by the applicant, third parties, and other federal agencies, as well as third party in-kind contributions, such as donated services and goods. Cost sharing also includes nonfederal gift money raised to release federal matching funds. Although cost sharing is not required, NEH is rarely able to support the full costs of projects approved for funding. In most cases, NEH Collaborative Research grants cover no more than 80 percent of project costs. The balance of the costs is to be borne by the applicant's institution or other sources. Previously funded projects seeking further support should expect a progressively larger share of the costs to be assumed by the host institution or third parties.

III. Eligibility

Eligibility is limited to

- institutional applicants, i.e., U.S. nonprofit organizations with IRS 501(c)(3) tax-exempt status, and state and local governments and federally recognized Indian tribal governments; and
- project directors who are not affiliated with an eligible institution, i.e., U.S. citizens or foreign nationals who have been living in the United States or its jurisdictions for at least the three years immediately preceding the application deadline.

Project directors affiliated with an eligible institution must apply through an institution, ordinarily their own institution. Only adjunct faculty, faculty at for-profit institutions, and scholars without an institutional affiliation may apply as unaffiliated project directors.

Degree candidates may not be project directors.

Project directors may submit only one application to either the Collaborative Research or the Scholarly Editions and Translations program, but not both. They may, however, apply for other NEH awards, including Fellowships or Summer Stipends.

NEH generally does not award grants to other federal entities or to applicants whose projects are so closely intertwined with a federal entity that the project takes on characteristics of the federal entity's own authorized activities. This does not preclude applicants from using grant funds from, or sites and materials controlled by, other federal entities in their projects. Such resources may not, however, be used as gifts to release NEH matching funds.

Late, incomplete, or ineligible applications will not be reviewed. Find answers to your eligibility questions in the Frequently Asked Questions.

IV. Application and Submission Information

HOW TO PREPARE YOUR APPLICATION

Application advice and proposal drafts:

Applicants may submit by e-mail (collaborative@neh.gov) a draft of the narrative and budget sections of their proposal at least six weeks before the deadline. Do NOT submit your draft through Grants.gov. A response cannot be guaranteed if the draft arrives later. Submitting a draft proposal enables an applicant to receive staff comments about the substance and format of the application. These comments are not part of the formal review process and have no bearing on the final outcome of the proposal, but previous applicants have found them helpful. Once NEH has received a formal application, its staff will not comment on its status except with respect to questions of completeness or eligibility.

You will prepare your application for submission via Grants.gov just as you would a paper application. Your application must consist of the following parts.

1. Statement of significance and impact

Provide a one-page abstract written for a nonspecialist audience, stating clearly the importance of the proposed work and its relation to larger issues in the humanities.

2. Table of contents

3. List of participants

Provide a one-page list, in alphabetical order, surnames first, of all participants and collaborators on the project. Include any institutional affiliations. The names on this list must match the names mentioned in the staff section of the project's narrative description. This list must include advisory board members, if any. Foreign nationals may be part of the project team and may be included in the budget.

4. Narrative

The narrative should not assume any specialized knowledge on the part of its readers, and it should be free of jargon. The narrative must be introduced with a project title that describes the proposal. The project title must be no more than 125 characters, and it should be informative to a nonspecialist audience.

In the narrative applicants must provide an intellectual justification for the project and a work plan. Narrative descriptions are limited to twenty-five double-spaced pages. Applications exceeding the page limit will not be reviewed. All pages should have one-inch margins, and the font size should be no smaller than Times New Roman eleven point. Use appendices to provide supplementary material. Applicants should keep in mind the criteria (listed below) used to evaluate proposals. Provide a detailed project description consisting of the following sections.

- Substance and context

Provide a clear and concise explanation of the project and its value to scholars, students, and general audiences in the humanities. Describe the scope of the research, the source materials, the relationship of the research to other published and ongoing work in the field, and the major issues to be addressed. Include a bibliographical essay in the narrative section or a bibliography of relevant primary and secondary sources in an appendix.

- History and duration of the project

Provide a concise history of the project, including information about preliminary research or planning, previous financial support, publications produced, and resources or research facilities available. List any print or electronic products with dates of publication; where applicable, the list must indicate the publisher, print or production runs, sales, and royalties. Provide reviews of the most recent products in an appendix. If an archaeological excavation is proposed, list publications of previous field reports and interpretive studies of the site. If the project has a website, provide its address. If work on the project will continue after the period of the grant, the applicant must provide details about that work and probable sources of support.

Proposals submitted by previously funded projects must be substantially updated, including a description of the new activities and a justification of the new budget request. The applicant must also describe how the previously funded project met its goals.

- Staff

Name the project director and all collaborators who would work on the project during the proposed grant period, regardless of whether NEH funds are requested to support their participation in the project. Describe their responsibilities and qualifications. State anticipated commitments of time for the project director and all collaborators, and explain the reasons for and nature of their participation. Project directors must devote a significant portion of their time to their projects. Provide résumés of the principal collaborators (maximum of two pages each) in an appendix.

o Methods

Explain the project's methods.

- Explain how central research questions will be approached and how any potential difficulties in working with primary source materials will be resolved.
- Describe in detail the tasks to be undertaken and the computer technology to be employed, indicating what technical and staff resources will be required, as well as the staff's experience with the technology and its application to humanities scholarship. If your project involves a large amount of data, describe your plan to manage the data.
- Applicants proposing field work must discuss the appropriateness of the methodology, including a clear, explicit discussion of the links between the project's interpretive questions, the data, and the methods of collection and analysis.
- Applicants proposing a conference should identify the issues to be addressed and explain their importance. Identify the presenters and commentators and describe how they were selected. Describe in detail the qualifications of each person listed on the program. Provide letters of commitment from conference participants in an appendix. Describe the conference's daily program and show how it will foster productive discussion. Provide the URL for the conference website, if available, and describe any plans for online components or activities. Provide information about facilities to be used for holding the conference and housing the participants. Applicants must demonstrate that a conference is the appropriate method for realizing the research objectives and that the objectives cannot be achieved through regular meetings of professional organizations and formal or informal gatherings of scholars.

Special Requirements for Archaeology Projects Located in the United States

Section 106 Review Process and Letter from the State Historic Preservation Office

Applicants requesting support for archaeology projects located in the United States are required to consult with the relevant State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) to determine if a property or site is listed, or is eligible for listing, in the National Register of Historic Places. The SHPO's eligibility determination should be included in an appendix to the application. If a property is eligible for or listed in the National Register, the applicant should, if possible, also include in an appendix to the application the SHPO's written comments as to the effect of the project on the building or site, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties.

Additionally, applicants who receive NEH grant funds for archaeology projects on property or sites listed, or eligible for listing, in the National Register of Historic Places must provide NEH with assistance in carrying out its responsibilities under Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act, 16 U.S.C. Section 470f, as amended. For all funded archaeology projects, Section 106 requires NEH to conduct a review to determine whether historic properties will be affected. If historic properties will be adversely affected by a project, Section 106 requires that NEH consult with the SHPO and the applicant to avoid, minimize, or mitigate the adverse effect.

The Section 106 review process is initiated once NEH makes a decision to fund an application for archaeology projects on property or sites listed, or eligible for listing, in the National Register of Historic Places. If such an application is selected for funding, the NEH Office of Grant Management will contact the applicant with a request for any additional information about the project that might be needed for Section 106 review. Once this information is received, NEH will conduct a review and determine whether further action is needed in order to comply with Section 106. The length of the Section 106 review process varies for each project. However, applicants can minimize the length of the review process by familiarizing themselves with Section 106 and by submitting required documentation with the grant application. NEH is not permitted to release any grant funds until the Section 106 process has concluded.

For more information on the Section 106 review process, the required documentation, and the responsibilities of an applicant prior to and during the Section 106 review, please read the Section 106 FAQs, or contact the NEH Federal Preservation Officer by e-mail at FPO@neh.gov, by phone at 202-606-8309, or by mail sent to Federal Preservation Officer, Office of Challenge Grants, Room 420, National Endowment for the Humanities, 1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20506.

Applicants requesting complete or partial funding for the development, acquisition, preservation, or enhancement of geospatial data, products, or services must conduct a due diligence search on the Geospatial One-Stop (GOS) Portal (<http://www.geodata.gov>) to discover whether their needed geospatial-related data, products, or services already exist. If not, the proposed geospatial data, products, or services must be produced in compliance with applicable proposed guidance posted at <http://www.fgdc.gov>.

- Final product and dissemination

NEH expects grantees to provide broad access to all grant products, insofar as the condition of the materials and intellectual property rights allow. Although grants may be used to support the preparation of print publications, NEH strongly encourages projects that offer free public access to online resources. All other considerations being equal, NEH will give preference to projects that provide free, online access to digital materials produced with grant funds.

Applicants preparing work for electronic publication must describe the technical standards and formats used by the project, including markup languages, database applications, and imaging formats; they should also provide URLs or sample screen displays whenever possible. Applicants are encouraged to use open standards and markup conforming to the Text Encoding Initiative (TEI), and to employ current best practices in the creation of electronic publications. Other pertinent considerations include access, interoperability, and sustainability of electronic data. If the methodology used for the creation of an electronic publication departs from generally-accepted standards and practices, applicants should explain their approach and give reasons why it was chosen.

Applicants must discuss publication arrangements, publicity plans, estimated prices, and user costs for both print and online publication. Any pertinent correspondence with a print or online publisher must be included in the appendices. If the project involves materials under copyright, applicants must indicate their plans for securing the necessary permission to publish. Any supporting documents must also be included in the appendices.

Applicants must discuss both the medium chosen for the final product (print volumes, electronic media, or some combination), and the reasons for this choice. Projects that have a website must provide the URL. Projects that include plans for a website must describe what has been done to secure a host for the site.

- Work plan

Describe what will be accomplished during each six-month period and identify the staff members involved. The work described in the proposal should be completed by the end of the grant period.

5. Project budget

Using the instructions (4-page PDF) and the budget template (3-page PDF), complete the budget spreadsheet (MS Excel format) or a format of your own that includes all the required information. In addition you may provide a brief budget addendum, limited to no more than two pages, explaining any of the budget items in more detail. Applicants are advised to retain a copy of the PDF containing their budget form.

6. Appendices

Use appendices to provide essential supplementary materials. Appendices must be limited to thirty-five pages. The materials must include a brief résumé (two-page maximum) for each principal project participant. Do not include assessments of previous applications and testimonials. Do include letters of commitment from conference participants, letters of commitment or interest from print or online publishers, and published reviews. When necessary, include documents confirming that copyright permissions have been secured. When applicable, provide samples such as web pages, screenshots, questionnaires, selection principles, or site maps. A summary of results from previous grants may be included in an appendix but should be limited to essential information. If bibliographical references are not in the narrative, include a bibliography of the relevant primary and secondary literature in an appendix.

- For archaeology projects, include appropriate plans, maps, and photographs, as well as evidence that all necessary permits will be forthcoming (and if possible, the State Historic Preservation Officer's eligibility determination, when such a determination is relevant).
- For conferences, provide a copy of the proposed program, letters of commitment from presenters and cooperating institutions, résumés (two-page maximum) for the conference organizers, and a paragraph devoted to each presenter's qualifications.

7. Statement of history of grants

If the project has received previous support from any federal or nonfederal sources, including NEH, provide a one-page list of the sources, dates, and amounts of these funds. Explain how many years of NEH support the project has already received. If it has a long history of support, the sources and contributions may be grouped and summarized.

When preparing an application, applicants should consult the Review Criteria below.

HOW TO SUBMIT YOUR APPLICATION

The application must be submitted to Grants.gov. Links to the Grants.gov application package and instructions for preparing and submitting the package can be found on the program resource page.

HOW TO SUBMIT SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIALS

If you are sending supplementary materials (those that cannot be submitted electronically—i.e., audio or video materials), please send eight copies of each item and include at the bottom of the table of contents—submitted via Grants.gov—a list of the materials to be mailed separately.

Mail the materials to:

Collaborative Research
Division of Research Programs
Room 318
National Endowment for the Humanities
1100 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20506
202-606-8200

NEH continues to experience lengthy delays in the delivery of mail by the U.S. Postal Service, and in some cases materials are damaged by the irradiation process. We recommend that supplementary materials be sent by a commercial delivery service to ensure that they arrive intact by the receipt deadline.

If you wish to have the materials returned to you, please include a self-addressed, pre-paid mailer.

DEADLINES

Draft Proposals (optional): Program staff recommends that draft proposals be submitted at least six weeks before the deadline. Time constraints may prevent staff from reviewing draft proposals submitted after that date.

Applications must be received by Grants.gov by 11:59 P.M., Eastern Time, on December 8, 2011. Grants.gov will date- and time-stamp your application after it is fully uploaded. Applications submitted after that date will not be accepted. Supplementary materials must also arrive at NEH by December 8, 2011, to be considered as part of the application.

V. Application Review

Evaluators are asked to apply the following five criteria.

1. The intellectual significance of the project, including its potential contribution to scholarship in the humanities; the likelihood that it will stimulate new research; its relationship to larger themes in the humanities; and the significance of the material on which the project is based.
2. The pertinence of the research questions being posed, the appropriateness of research methods or conference design; the appropriateness of the technology employed in the project; the feasibility of the work plan; and the appropriateness of the field work to be undertaken, the archival or source materials to be studied, and the research site.
3. The qualifications, expertise, and levels of commitment of the project director and project staff or contributors, and the appropriateness and value of the collaboration.
4. The soundness of the dissemination and access plans, including benefit to the audience identified in the proposal and the strength of the case for employing print, a digital format, or a combination of media; and in the case of archaeology projects, the likelihood that the project will produce an interpretive study. All other considerations being equal, preference will be given to projects that provide free, online access to digital materials produced with grant funds.

5. The potential for success, including the likelihood that the work proposed will be completed within the projected time frame; where appropriate, the project's previous record of success; and the reasonableness of the proposed budget in relation to projected results.

Review and selection process

Knowledgeable persons outside NEH will read each application and advise the agency about its merits. NEH staff comments on matters of fact or on significant issues that otherwise would be missing from these reviews, then makes recommendations to the National Council on the Humanities. The National Council meets at various times during the year to advise the NEH chairman on grants. The chairman takes into account the advice provided by the review process and, by law, makes all funding decisions.

VI. Award Administration Information

Award notices

Applicants will be notified by e-mail of the decision by September 30, 2012. Institutional grants administrators and project directors of successful applications will receive award documents by e-mail after the August notification.
