Below are some examples.

- About 90,000 pages of historical newspapers such as the Working-Man’s Gazette and the Windham County Reformer from 1836 to 1922 are being digitized by the University of Vermont with a $691,000 grant. This work is part of Chronicling America, an NEH–Library of Congress collaboration.

- About 25,000 visitors come annually to the Calvin Coolidge Visitors’ Center, in Plymouth Notch, the rural hamlet where the thirtieth president was born. With support from a $330,000 challenge grant, which it used to spur private contributions of $990,000, the center enlarged and modernized its facilities into a full-fledged museum with expanded programming.

- With support from a $24,000 education grant, the University of Vermont has developed a one semester course on the “enduring questions” surrounding individualism and its excesses. Students read authors such as Ralph Waldo Emerson and Richard Rorty.

- Revolutions have inspired historical novels from A Tale of Two Cities to Doctor Zhivago. This literary phenomenon is being examined by Middlebury College professor John Probasco McWilliams in an upcoming book for which he has received a $50,400 research grant.

- The American Precision Museum in Windsor received a $340,000 grant to implement a permanent exhibition exploring how American history was shaped by industrialization and the rise of manufacturing.

- For over a decade, “First Wednesdays” have brought lecturers on “Civility in a Fractured Society,” “Beethoven’s Sketchbooks” and other topics to libraries across the state, supported by the Vermont Humanities Council and the Institute of Museum and Library Services.
NATIONWIDE
NEH supports programs and projects that contribute directly and dramatically to the cultural life and historical perspective of tens of millions of Americans.

Here are some examples.

PRESERVING THE FIRST DRAFT OF HISTORY
Nothing captures the character of a community or the spirit of an era better than its newspapers. Chronicling America, a partnership between NEH and the Library of Congress, is digitizing millions of pages taken from newspapers dating back to the early Republic, making it possible to search the pages online for any word or phrase—at no charge.

AMERICAN VOICES
The papers of prominent Americans are a vital part of our cultural heritage, and NEH funds many projects to assemble and preserve them, including complete sets of collected papers for ten presidents from Washington to Lincoln to Eisenhower as well as public figures such as Thomas Edison, Martin Luther King Jr., George Marshall, Emily Dickinson, Walt Whitman, and Mark Twain.

SUCCEEDING BY THE BOOK
Over the past forty-five years, scholars supported by Endowment grants have produced more than 7,000 books—including numerous classics such as Dumas Malone’s Jefferson and His Time, James McPherson’s Battle Cry of Freedom, and Louis Menand’s The Metaphysical Club: A Story of Ideas in America—that have garnered scores of awards, including eighteen Pulitzer Prizes.

PAST AND PRESENT IN PIXELS
NEH investments in the digital humanities make it possible for a student to walk the corridors of the Temple of Karnak in ancient Egypt in virtual 3-D, or to visit the 1964–65 World’s Fair held in New York. Spectral imaging has been used to create an online critical edition of explorer David Livingstone’s previously unreadable field diary.

GENERATING PRIVATE SUPPORT
Almost $2 billion in humanities support has been generated by the Challenge Grants program, which requires recipients to raise $3 or $4 in outside funds for every federal dollar they receive.

HISTORY ON SCREEN AND IN TOWN
NEH-supported films bring history alive. Twenty million Americans watched Ken Burns’s The War (2007), and ten million saw The Abolitionists (2013). NEH also funds hundreds of exhibitions—not only blockbusters such as “King Tut” that make the heritage of other cultures accessible to the American public, but also smaller projects such as Lincoln, the Constitution, and the Civil War that reach classrooms across the country.

KEEPING TEACHERS UP-TO-DATE
Seminars, institutes, and workshops give teachers the opportunity to refresh and deepen their knowledge about the humanities through intense study. In the past three years, more than 2,100 college teachers and 7,500 schoolteachers have participated in NEH-supported programs, to the benefit of more than one million students.

REACHING ACROSS THE NATION
Last year, state humanities councils, NEH’s affiliates in the fifty states, the District of Columbia and five U.S. territories put on 16,800 reading and discussion programs, 6,500 literacy programs, 4,000 speakers bureau presentations, 5,400 conferences, 1,750 Chautauqua events, 24,000 media programs, and 7,300 technology, preservation, and local history events. The 56 councils also sponsored 2,300 exhibitions.
