Digital Humanities Advancement Grants

Office of Digital Humanities

The Digital Humanities Advancement Grants program (DHAG) supports innovative, experimental, and/or computationally challenging digital projects, leading to work that can scale to enhance scholarly research, teaching, and public programming in the humanities.

DHAG is one of many grant programs at the NEH that funds digital humanities projects. Please consult these resources to help find the right program to support your work.

Program priorities

• Research and refinement of innovative, experimental, or computationally-challenging methods and techniques

• Enhancement or design of digital infrastructure that contributes to and supports the humanities, such as open-source code, tools, or platforms, and

• Evaluative studies that investigate the practices and the impact of digital scholarship on research, pedagogy, scholarly communication, and public engagement
The DHAG program values experimentation, reuse, and extensibility, leading to work that can scale to enhance scholarly research, teaching, and public programs in the humanities. DHAG recipients contribute to humanities scholarship by serving carefully identified audiences, addressing issues of accessibility and usability, and designing equitable, open, replicable, and sustainable projects.
Dangers and Opportunities of Technology: Perspectives from the Humanities

Office of Digital Humanities

Grants.gov will be unavailable September 23 – 29, 2022 due to systems maintenance.

The Dangers and Opportunities of Technology: Perspectives from the Humanities (DOT) program supports humanistic research that examines the relationship between technology and society. NEH is particularly interested in projects that examine current social and cultural issues that are significantly shaped by technology.

Technology has had an enormous impact on modern society, affecting how we work, communicate, learn, engage in the political process, and live. The relationship between technology and culture continues to have dramatic impacts, both positive and negative, on our health, the environment, our social interactions, our government, cultural and educational institutions, the arts, and nearly all other aspects of life.
6. Funding Restrictions

You may not use awards made under this notice for the following purposes:

- projects that mainly involve digitization, unless you propose an innovative method for digitization (see Related funding opportunities)
- projects that primarily develop humanities content for websites, mobile applications, games, and virtual environments, unless you propose innovative methods or are developing new technologies (see Related funding opportunities)
- undergraduate or graduate course development (see Related funding opportunities)
- the creation or conversion of a scholarly journal to a digital format (unless you develop new modes or platforms in scholarly publishing)
- recurring maintenance costs that support only the day-to-day operations of existing projects rather than substantive changes or upgrades
- attendance at recurring or established conferences or professional meetings, unless to disseminate project-related findings
- projects in which more than 2/3 of direct costs are for equipment, materials, and supplies (such as to outfit a digital humanities lab or makerspace)
- promotion of a particular political, religious, or ideological point of view
- advocacy of a particular program of social or political action
- support of specific public policies or legislation
- lobbying
- projects that fall outside of the humanities; the creation or performance of art; creative writing, autobiographies, memoirs, and creative nonfiction; policy studies; and social science research that does not address humanistic questions and/or utilize humanistic methods

See 2 CFR 200 Subpart E - Cost Principles for other unallowable costs.
Level I awards (up to $75,000 and up to 24 months) support small research projects or early stages of larger projects, including activities such as:

- developing a research agenda or strategy
- identifying appropriate methods or technologies for new and existing digital humanities projects
- convening planning sessions with stakeholders or conducting audience research to determine user needs and priorities
- designing experimental alpha-level prototypes
- facilitating convenings to address field-wide questions
- planning to revitalize and/or recover an existing digital project
Level II awards (from $75,001 to $150,000 and up to 24 months) support projects that have completed an initial planning phase and are poised to scale up based on prior research and development with a well-defined work plan, including activities such as:

- technical development and/or user experience design for beta-stage prototypes of opensource tools or software
- data curation
- meetings with advisory board members or collaborators
- evaluation and refinement of the project’s methods, workflows, or tools to teach
- humanities concepts or to support humanities research
- development of virtual/in-person workshops or tutorials to disseminate project results
Level III awards (from $150,001 to $350,000 and up to 36 months) support the expansion of mature projects with an established user base and strong dissemination plans beyond the applicant institution. Activities might include:

- technical and user experience design, including transformation of a prototype into a usable resource
- testing with targeted user communities
- code review and bug fixing
- development of training materials and documentation to promote wide use of the project
- preparation of presentations and publications to disseminate project results
- preparation of data, software, or websites for future preservation
- accessibility compliance review

Review Criterion 1

1: The clarity of the project’s goals and significance and impact for the humanities (aligns with narrative sections Overview of the project, Enhancing the humanities, and Final products and dissemination)
2: The quality of the overall conception, organization, and description of how the proposed work sits within a broader context, and quality of the argument for new (or further) work in this area (aligns with the narrative sections Overview of the project, Environmental scan, and History of the project)
3: The feasibility and appropriateness of the activities, work plan, methodology, and use of technology, and the project’s plans for mitigating risk and addressing accessibility for its intended audiences (aligns with narrative sections Activities and project team and Final product and dissemination and Attachment 3. Work plan)
Review Criterion 4

4: The qualifications, expertise, and levels of commitment of the project director and key project staff or contributors (aligns with narrative section Activities and project team and Attachment 4: Biographies)
Review
Criterion 5

5: The reasonableness of the proposed budget in relation to the proposed activities, staff compensation, the anticipated results, products, and dissemination (aligns with narrative section Activities and project team, Attachment 3: Work plan, and the Budget)
6: The quality and appropriateness of project plans for data management and (if applicable) sustainability (aligns with Attachment 5: Data management plan, and for Level III applicants, Attachment 6: Sustainability plan)
General tips

• Write clearly and concisely; avoid jargon and overly technical language
• Review all sections of the application
• Start early and work with your grant administrator(s)
• Read through "What's New" and "Reminders" sections
What’s New for 2023

- Applicants may now request up to $75,000 for Level 1 projects
- Applicants must now include an “Overview of the project” section as part of the application narrative
- DHAG is temporarily suspending funding for projects that examine the history, criticism, ethics, or philosophy of digital culture or technology and its impact on society as this work may be supported by the Dangers and Opportunities of Technology program
- Subrecipient budget forms are now required for projects that include subawards

Reminders:

- Applications will be declared ineligible for review if they do not include all required sections and components (e.g., Budget form with a Budget Justification, Biographies and not CVs)
- Applications will be declared ineligible for review if they do not comply with all requirements indicated with a “must” outlined in the NOFO, including page limits.
- Two or more applications for federal funding and/or approved federal award budgets are not permitted to include overlapping project costs.
- We no longer accept letters of support. Any letters submitted by individuals not participating in the project will be removed from the application.

NEH review process

Step 1
Applicants use guidelines and Grants.gov package to prepare materials for submission.

Step 2
Applicant submits application package to Grants.gov by deadline.

Step 3
NEH assembles peer review panel. Knowledgeable persons outside NEH read each application and advise the agency about its merits. Read More »

Step 4
Using peer review evaluations, NEH staff recommends applications for funding based on available funds. Read More »
Step 5

National Council on the Humanities, which meets three times a year, reviews the recommended applications. Read More

Step 6

NEH chairman takes into account the advice provided by the review process and, by law, makes all funding decisions. Read More

Step 7

Applicants are notified whether their projects will be funded.
