Recent Project Highlights:

- The Buffalo Society of Natural Sciences, with an NEH grant, is digitizing almost 2000 nitrate image negatives taken between 1920-1940, securing their content and transforming a currently unstable and inaccessible collection of images into an available resource for research, publication, exhibition, and programming.
- The Brooklyn Children’s Museum will create Brooklyn Time Machine, a permanent exhibition exploring 400 years of Brooklyn’s history through a 25-foot high, three-level climbing structure for children ages 5 to 12. Chutes, ladders, fire poles, stairs, and ramps will allow visitors to “time travel” between the exhibition’s three levels representing underground, the street, and the sky.

NEH also provides annual funding to Humanities New York (HNY), the designated humanities council in the state, to support a wide array of public programming.

Recent Humanities New York Highlights:

- Liberty, Land, and Loss: Echoes of the American Revolution is a new, scholar-guided reading and discussion series, curated and introduced by Pulitzer Prize-winning historian Alan Taylor, exploring the struggle for equality in America.
- The Humanities Centers Initiative (HCI) is a statewide partnership between HNY and a network of humanities centers at nine NY State universities. The HCI supports humanities institutes, faculty, and graduate students in their commitment to public engagement.
