Text: Subject: National Endowment for the Humanities Grant Notification
December 05, 2016

Dear Representative Royce:

I am proud to announce that the National Endowment for the Humanities is offering grants to institutions and individuals in your 39th district. NEH grants are highly competitive and involve a rigorous peer-review and selection process to ensure that the projects represent the highest level of humanities research and public engagement. Please find the offered grants listed below.

NEH notifies congressional offices of newly offered grants several days before NEH notifies the project directors, so that Members of Congress or their staff have the opportunity to personally call the project directors to inform and congratulate them on their successful applications. If you call the project directors between now and December 7, you will be the first to notify them of their projects' approval. Please find their contact information below.

Many congressional offices work with the project directors to publicly announce offered grants. On December 7, NEH staff will contact all successful applicants directly. On December 14, NEH will announce the grants on its website, www.neh.gov (<http://www.neh.gov>). Please hold your public announcements (both traditional and social media) until December 14.

If you have any questions or would like further information, please contact NEH's Director of Congressional Affairs, Tim Aiken at (202) 606-8273 or taiken@neh.gov (<mailto:taiken@neh.gov>).

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Royce:

As you are aware, we are in the midst of an information technology revolution that offers many new opportunities for the American people and our nation's future. At the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), we seek to establish ourselves as a leader among government agencies taking advantage of this situation, and are constantly looking for new ways in which we can benefit you and your constituents through access to online information.

Therefore, we would like you to be aware of our three key websites that we believe will be highly beneficial to citizens seeking support from the NEH. First of all, our main website, located at www.neh.gov, allows individuals to learn about the nature of the Endowment's grant programs and how to apply for them. The site provides in-depth information on a broad range of programs that NEH sponsors, including: film and media projects, library and museum exhibits, institutes and seminars for teacher training, research support for scholars in the humanities, partnership opportunities with State Humanities Councils, the Endowment's efforts to preserve Presidential papers and significant historical documents, and much more. The site is highly user friendly, and includes access to a short video narrated by the actor Morgan Freeman, which helps explain the mission of the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH).

Additionally, we have an award winning website, www.edsitement.neh.gov, which is a content rich gateway that has been particularly a helpful resource to teachers preparing their lesson plans for the classroom experience. Launched as an innovative public-private partnership between the NEH and MCI Worldcom, EDSITEment comprises seventy-one collective websites selected for their excellent humanities content, interactive design, and usefulness in the classroom. If, for example, a high school teacher in a remote community were preparing a lesson plan for a history lesson on Thomas Jefferson's role in the Revolutionary War, the Lewis & Clark Expedition to the West, or the Civil War, they would find high quality content through the EDSITEment website.

Congressman Edward R. Royce

Finally, the NEH launched a new project last Fall known as "My History is America's History," which produced a very resourceful guidebook that assists average citizens in researching and discovering their family's history while linking their experience to the nation's history. We have launched an accompanying website, which can be reached at www.myhistory.org. The "My History" guidebook is available through the online site, which provides citizens the opportunity to go online and share their family's history with the national community.

We will continue to look for new and improved ways to use online resources to benefit the public interest, and believe that these NEH websites already available will be helpful and informative resources for your constituents.

Sincerely,

Michael Bagley

NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES

Honorable Edward R. Royce
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Congressman Royce:

I am pleased to take this opportunity to invite you and your constituents to visit the website of the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), which provides a wealth of information on the many programs and activities that the Endowment is engaged in on behalf of the American people.

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) provides training for nation's teachers through seminars and institutes, protects our nation's heritage through preservation projects such as preserving Presidential papers, supports scholarship in the humanities, supports the work of museums and libraries, helps us understand our culture and history through public programs that are aired on PBS such as the Ken Burns' Civil War series, and is engaged in a variety of other important initiatives. The NEH hosts two websites that serve the needs of the public. At www.neh.gov, visitors to the site can meet our Chairman, William Ferris, obtain information about our grant programs, find additional information about the types of grants and projects supported by the Endowment, and have access to the staff resources available at the Endowment. At <http://edsitement.neh.gov>, visitors can participate in the educational experience that is EDSITEMent. EDSITEMent brings together the best of the humanities on the web. It is a constantly growing collection of the most valuable online resources for teaching English, history, art history, and foreign languages. Many teachers throughout the nation are finding EDSITEMent to be a valuable resource to assist them with their classroom teaching objectives. EDSITEMent is a joint project of the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Council of the Great City Schools, MCI WorldCom, and the National Trust for the Humanities.

I am also enclosing for your information, a fact sheet about the NEH, as well as a brochure on our EdSITEment website. This will explain what the humanities are and NEH's role in preserving and promoting our nation's heritage and culture. I hope that you and your staff will have the opportunity to visit these informative websites soon. If I may be of assistance to you or your constituents, please do not hesitate to contact me at (202) 606-8328.

Sincerely,
